MADISON COUNTY LEGAL ADVICE CLINIC

Chief Judge William Mudge is excited to announce that the Madison County Legal Advice Clinic will begin a resumption of their services on March 15th. The Legal Advice Clinic, formerly held solely in the Madison County Law Library, will now be offered in a virtual format. The Clinic hosted in conjunction with the Madison County Bar Association and the Public Law Initiative provides self-represented litigants with a 30 minute free legal advice consultation. “It is especially important during these difficult times that we help those in need access services in a safe and efficient manner,” said Chief Judge William Mudge.

To schedule an appointment with the Legal Advice Clinic, self-represented litigants should contact the Madison County Law Library and Legal Self-Help Center at 618-296-4900 or lawlibrary@co.madison.il.us.
